INTRODUCTORY.

HISTORY OF THE LIBRARY.

The Library had its origin in a recommendation of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence, (of which Bro. Chas. S. Frailey was chairman,) submitted to the Grand Lodge in 1849. (Proc. G.·. L.·. 1849, pp. 39 and 50.) The resolution reported by that committee was adopted, constituting the Grand Master, the Grand Secretary, and the Grand Treasurer a standing committee, to be called the Library Committee, whose duties were prescribed to be—

"To select and purchase, from time to time, such standard works on Masonry as may by them be deemed advisable, at a cost not to exceed the sum of $50 in any one year."

Very little attention appears to have been given the Library, however, until after Bro. Frailey had become Grand Master some years later. In his annual address as Grand Master in 1855, (Proc. G.·. L.·. 1855, p. 20,) he says:

"The undertaking I had, at an early period, at heart, and which was finally adopted by the Grand Lodge—the establishment of a Library--has received during the past year a full share of my attention."

He reports the purchase that year of certain books on Masonic subjects, and says that—

"None other of that character have been added, the Library Committee having no knowledge at present of any others likely to be useful."

The rules for the government of the Library, approved by the Grand Lodge this year (ibid., p. 30,) provided that—

"Voluntary contributions may be made, and accepted by the Committee, of works on other [than Masonic] subjects."

The Grand Secretary reported at the May Communication of 1856, (Proc. G.·. L.·. 1856, p. 10,) that he had labeled, classified and numbered the books in the Library, and had prepared a catalogue of the same. This catalogue, making about three-fourths of a page of printed matter, is appended to the proceedings of the Grand Lodge for 1856. The resolution of 1849, establishing a Standing Committee on the Library, to consist of the Grand Master, the Grand Secretary, and the Grand Treasurer, was incorporated in the Grand Lodge Constitution adopted in 1856. The Constitution of 1864 required the Grand Master to appoint the Library Committee in the same manner as other standing committees of the Grand Lodge; and such are the provisions of the present Constitution.

For a period of nine years following 1858, the Library appears to have fallen into great neglect. Attention to it was revived in 1867 by the report of Bro. Noble D. Larner, the Grand Secretary, who learned, upon his induction into office in that year, that books had been taken and never returned and no record kept, some valuable sets having been broken, thus greatly impairing their usefulness. But an earnest and abiding interest was not taken in the subject until after the removal of the fraternity into the new Masonic Temple, corner of F and Ninth streets, in 1870, where a large room, fitted up with appropriate book cases, was devoted to the uses of the Library.

Grand Master Charles F. Stansbury, himself a man of letters, in his annual address on November 8, 1871 (Proc. G.·. L.·. 1871, pp. 33, 34), impressed upon the fraternity the great desirability of placing the Grand Lodge Library upon a respectable footing, and on December 27, 1871 (ibid., p. 44), he said:

"I have an ambition for this jurisdiction, which, I think, through your united efforts, may meet full gratification. It is, that not only in Masonic harmony and prosperity, but in refinement, social standing, general culture, Masonic learning, and catholic Masonic charity, we should be unsurpassed, if not unrivaled, in any other jurisdiction whatever. This eminence cannot be achieved except by earnest effort and study, and if we would have our brethren learned and accomplished Masons we must afford them the means of study, and offer them the rewards which superior attainments deserve. To this end nothing more earnestly commends itself to my approval than the formation of a comprehensive Library for the use of the fraternity here. I have repeatedly recommended this measure, and I rejoice that it has been heartily seconded, and is in a fair way to be carried into execution."

At the January Communication, 1872 (ibid., p. 200), the Grand Lodge authorized the appointment of a Librarian, and the issue of a circular requesting the members of lodges to make donations of books, the object being, as stated, to establish—

"A well-selected Library, not only of purely Masonic and archaeological works, but also of miscellaneous standard books."

The scheme for the administration of the Library adopted at this time contemplated the charging of a fee to the users of the Library, but by resolution adopted by the Grand Lodge January 8, 1873 (Proc. G.·. L.·. 1872, p. 145), the Library was made—

"Free to all members of the Fraternity in this jurisdiction under such rules and regulations as may be adopted by the Library Committee, provided by the Constitution of the Grand Lodge, under whose control the Librarian and Library shall be."

In his annual address on November 13, 1872 (Proc. G.·. L.·. 1872, pp. 28, 29), Grand Master Stansbury said:

"One of my most cherished desires has been to accomplish the establishment of a creditable and useful Library and reading room for the benefit of the Fraternity here. * * * I shall be disappointed in the expectations I have formed of the intelligence, learning, and zeal of the Masons of this jurisdiction if they do not lend their cordial support to this measure. The standard of Masonic intelligence and culture is becoming higher and higher throughout our country. It has been my pride to point to the intellectual character of the order in this jurisdiction as unsurpassed. But we shall make of this an idle boast if we are not willing to do something—to do all in our power—to supply the means of keeping up the intellectual life of the Fraternity."

In his address on November 12, 1873 (Proc. G.·. L.·. 1873, p. 17), he said:

"Our stock of books is largely increased over the number upon our shelves when the effort to place the Library upon a proper footing was first commenced, but many of the books are useful only for reference, and the great want of a good collection of readable books, such as the brethren would desire to take to their homes for their own use and that of their families, is still almost entirely unsupplied."

Through the zeal and activity of the Library Committees and the Librarians, the voluntary contributions of books by members of the Fraternity, and the judicious and economical expenditure of the funds annually accruing to the Library during the past few years, a very creditable collection of books, covering a considerable variety of subjects, has now been made, a list of which will be found in the catalogue herewith. This nucleus of a free Masonic Library must, in the language of the Library Committee of 1881, grow, under the fostering care of the Grand Lodge and the liberality of the brethren, into increased importance, as—

"An exponent of the intelligence, the culture, and the taste of the Fraternity of this jurisdiction."

REVENUES.

The present revenue of the Library is the annual appropriation of $50 from the funds of the Grand Lodge, under Art. XXII, Sec. 6, of the Constitution. Up to the year 1883, the interest (amounting to $40 per annum) on $500 of the money returned by the Masonic Relief Committee of Chicago in 1872 as an unused portion of the funds contributed by the Masons of the District of Columbia for the relief of the brethren in that city who were sufferers by the great fire of that year, (Proc. G.·. L.·. 1872, pp. 144–'5,) constituted one of the sources of revenue; but by resolution of the Grand Lodge of May 9, 1883, the money was covered into the Grand Lodge Treasury, and $175 thereof was appropriated for the purchase of books. (See Proc. G.·. L.·. 1883, p. 19.)

In addition, occasional donations of money are made by the Grand Chapter of the District of Columbia. Voluntary contributions of books are made by the brethren at any time, and are always acceptable.

I. L. JOHNSON,
WM. A. DECAINDRY,
Library Committee.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 15, 1886.

RULES

Adopted by the Library Committee, August 10, 1882.

1. The Library will be regularly open for obtaining and returning books as follows :

During the months from October to May, inclusive. Every Monday, Thursday, and Friday evening, from 6.30 to 8 o'clock.

During the months of June to September, inclusive. Every Monday evening, from 7 to 8 o'clock.

In addition the Librarian will attend to the receipt and delivery of books whenever it may be convenient for him to be present in the Library.

2. Members of Lodges in good standing may obtain books from the Librarian, to be returned in two weeks; and if not called for in the meantime, may be retained two weeks longer.

The families of members may enjoy the benefits of the Library by presenting the written requests of members,—who should give previous notice to the Librarian,—which requests will be preserved by the Librarian. Members are held responsible for the books obtained by their families. Not more than one book, or two volumes of one work, will be allowed to be taken at one time by a member; and not more than one book, or two volumes of one work, will be allowed to be obtained at the same time by any member of his family.

3. The names of members obtaining books, and of the members of their families who take books in their names, must be entered by the Librarian in the Daily Record, and proper credit given when they are returned. He will request the return of any book that has been retained an unnecessary length of time, and will report from time to time to the Library Committee the names of all delinquents.

4. Books returned when the Librarian is not present must not be left exposed on the Librarian's desk, but must be deposited in the drawer of the desk, a slip being left in the book showing by whom and when returned. Books must not be taken from the drawer by any one without consent first had from the Librarian.

5. Books lost or damaged must be replaced, or a suitable consideration paid, the amount of which will be fixed by the Library Committee. If one of a set, the missing or damaged volume replaced must match the set, or the full value of the set must be paid by the loser, the broken set then becoming his property.

6. The bound volumes of Proceedings of Grand Lodges cannot be taken from the Library room. They belong to the office of the Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge.

7. The Librarian is charged with the execution of these rules, and is responsible to the Library Committee for their due observance.
